MISSISSIPPI BANK OFFICIALS ARRESTED

Accepted Deposits After Becoming Insolvent—15c on Dollar for Depositors

(By Associated Press) Natchez, Miss., April 1.—Investigation into the affairs of the First Natchez Bank, which closed its doors on October 12, 1913, resulted in the indictment here today by the Adams county grand jury of A. G. Campbell, president, S. H. Lowenberg, first vice-president and R. Leo Wood, second vice-president of the defunct institution on the charge of accepting deposits after the bank was insolvent.

The grand jury is investigating the savings department of the bank, and other indictments are expected.

The three indicted officials were held under bond for their trial, which has been set by Judge Jackson for tomorrow evening.

The First Natchez Bank was capitalized at $250,000. At the time the bank closed its doors its books showed total deposits in commercial and savings departments of $1,323,396.00, with only $15,868.44 cash on hand.

A report made by the accountants who were engaged to audit the books stated that the capital stock, surplus and undivided profits were wiped out in 1910, and attributed the failure to excessive loans made to the planting companies, in which the president was interested, the loans to these companies amounting to $322,056. The report further said that the quarterly statements made to the state auditor were falsified and did not correspond with the items on the bank books. It is believed the depositors will get 15 per cent of their deposits.

TYPHOID VACCINE

Efficacy of the new typhoid vaccine invented by Dr. Vincent is shown in army reports in the case of the Alpine Chasseurs who were vaccinated in 1912 just before going to Morocco. This contingent of the French African army 1260 strong, reports that during an extremely difficult campaign of fourteen months not a single case of typhoid developed among the vaccinated soldiers, although two cases were noted among men considered immune because of having had typhoid before and who were therefore not vaccinated.

Champion of State Rights

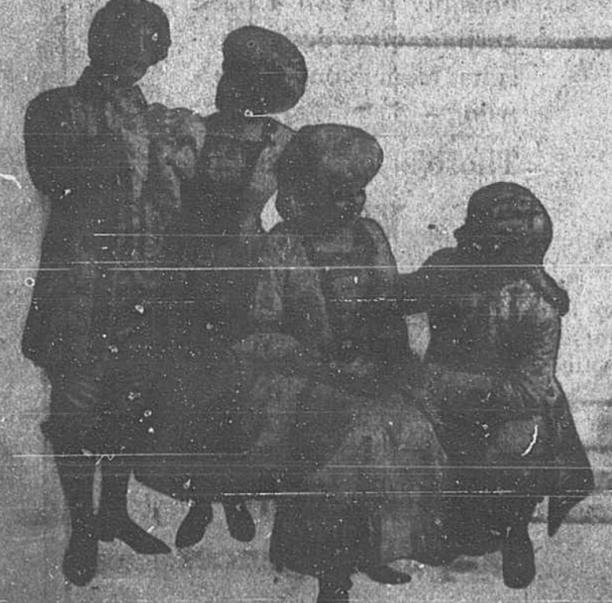

March 31, 1850.

John C. Calhoun saw the last of earth sixty-four years ago today, yet his memory is still fresh in the minds of his countrymen, and the great principle to the championship of which he dedicated his life, remains the one vital and all-important question in our American politics.

History teaches us that the one great danger in all human governments is centralization—the absorption by a single person, or combination of persons, of the popular rights and functions; resulting in the partial or complete paralysis of local political activities and of local political freedom.

Such has been the great evil of the past, and it is hardly necessary to say that the evil still threatens every present-day government. For does not history, the richest, the most accurate, and that it is never to be trusted unless all due safeguards are provided against its abuse. Caesar grows by what he feeds on, and the more authority he gets the more authority he wants.

Calhoun knew history as well as its contemporary knows the ground that if you do not want governmental power to be abused, you must see to it that the means are always at hand for its prevention, should it be threatened. He believed in giving the states agents at Washington as little power as possible and in retaining in
